Title: Uttarakhand churn: with eye on state polls, BJP goes for new CM face

The article at hand talks about the current political scenario of Uttarakhand as the author talks about the various perspectives related to it, keeping in mind the upcoming assembly elections.

Recently, Trivendra Singh Rawat resigned as the CM of Uttarakhand, failing to complete his full term. But this not the first time a CM in Uttarakhand has failed to serve the full term.

Since its bifurcation from UP in 2000, no CM except one has been able to serve full-time. With BJP replacing quickly replacing Trivendra Singh, it is clear that the focus is on the upcoming assembly elections.

The party hopes a fresh CM candidate will bring a positive atmosphere. But BJP's path won't be as easy as it seems even if the party has managed to horde off recent challenges.

Besides, there are plenty of prominent faces in Uttarakhand for BJP, and managing them while also infusing new blood in its cadre will be a tough task for the party.
