- He emphasized the trade in digital agriculture and technology to address concerns about biosafety and biosafety and to develop flexible agriculture, food systems and value chains.

BIMSTEC

BIMSTEC was established in 1997 with the objective of promoting mutual trade, connectivity and cultural, technological and economic development in the region. It previously covered 6 sectors, e.g., technology, trade, energy, transportation, fisheries and tourism. These areas were later expanded to 14 areas of cooperation. Agriculture is one of those 14 sectors.

Sri Lanka declares food emergency

- Sri Lanka declared a state of emergency due to food shortages. In fact, Sri Lankan private banks have run out of foreign currency, making them unable to pay import duties.
- Sri Lanka is facing a difficult economic crisis. After the crisis, President Gotabaya Rajapaksa ordered emergency rules to deal with stockpiles of sugar, rice and other essential foodstuffs.
- The president appointed a high-ranking military official as "commissioner of services required for the supply of rice, rice, sugar and other consumer goods."
- The move comes after a sharp rise in prices of sugar, rice, onions and potatoes. Lack of milk powder, cooking gas and kerosene has led to long queues outside shops.
- The government has also increased fines on food storage.

The economy of Sri Lanka

The Covid-19 epidemic caused Sri Lanka's economy to shrink by 3.6% in 2020. In March 2020, the government banned the import of vehicles and other items such as edible oil and turmeric to save foreign exchange. Sri Lanka's central bank also raised interest rates to boost the local currency.
